Slection Cases - The Decision.

VASHINGTON, D. C., April 29.-It is now understood among the Georgians at the capital that Mr. Stephens will, if his health continues as good as it now is, allow his friends to use his name as a candidate for Governor. He will not, however, be the candidate of any party but the democracy, to which his deseems strengthening as he grows older. Indeed, he mentioned as one of the highest considerations inducing him to lay aside his resolution to retire from public life the hope that he may aid in preserving Robeson in the conclusion of the debate on the Lynch-Chalmers case to-day. After Mr. Robeson had rushed up and down the aisle declaring congress supreme over all the laws of the state, Mr. Hammond replied in a brief but ringing speech, concluding by saying: "I admire the magnificent attitude of the gentleman from New Jersey as, throwing his coat aside, he tramples on the prostrate states, but I despise his so-called law."

THE GAME TO PROCKED.

The democrats have determined not to filibuster in any of the election cases. They say there is not a precedent which would justify it, and the injury to the party would be more than any possible advantage which could be gained. The republican programme is to oust every democratic member whom the committee had reported against. With Mr. Robeson to howl on the floor and Mr. Keifer to stolidly push the programme of his party from the to now on the Boot and Mr. Reflet to stollarly push the programme of his party from the chair, we will have some lovely scenes. The remaining election cases will not be taken up until after the tariff commission bill is disposed of.

SENATOR HILL.

Some Tributes of Feeling for the Senator in Washington.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution. Washington, April 25 .- Senator Hill's last visit to Washington was singularly sad. When he left here a few weeks ago he had every as-surance from his physicians that the cancerous surance from his physicians that the cancerous affection had entirely disappeared; that he had successfully endured the heroic treatment; and that as soon as the wound on his neck healed he would be a restored man. He had already suffered intense agony—so intense that I heard him say he would have wished to die had he thought of self alone. But through it all had glowed the strength of manhood and gleamed the patience of the martyr. While he had faced the worst and spoken of it as calmly as of to-morrow's rising sun he still thought as of to-morrow's rising sun he still thought of life as before him and to friends planned out the purposes of his ripening years. His face had its features as we knew them and his face had its features as we knew them and his eye its old time brightness. His superb frame was not wasted and every faculty seemed to shine in the light of a returning hope. He spoke of the fearful suffering he had undergone and of the weary waiting for its end.

THE PURPOSES OF HIS LIFE.

With some friends I heard him run over the purposes of his life; tell of his drifting into politics and the trials it had brought him. He spoke of the things he desired to live to do until he portrayed a pure and beautiful ambition, and then, as if all this were taken from him, he said in a tone of unbroken cheerfulness:

cheerfulness:
"But suppose I do not recover. I cannot complain. I have lived fifty-eight years, and I suppose no man ever lived fifty-eight happier years. It may be best that they be all."
He looked then so like laimself, and spoke so bravely, that when we went away every one of us said he would recover. In a few days he went again to Philadelphia, it was said, that his surgeons might oversee the process of recovery. Al-most the same report of his condition was re-It was that he was getting turned.

He had indulged that hope and had even written that he would in three weeks be again

On a sudden came the sad announcement that the recovery was delayed until it had become doubtful and then the deeper gloom of renewed suffering and sinking strength. Attended by his wife and sons he reached Washington, and when friends called they were told it would not be well to see him. Remaining here only a day he harried on with Mrs. Hill, Charles D. Hill and Dr. Wright, of J-sferson medical college, on a long and wearing journey to Eureka springs in Arkan-as.

and Dr. Wright, of J-fferson medical college, on a long and wearing journey to Eureka springs in Arkan-as.

THE FEELING AN WASHINGTON.

There is a universal feeling in Washington that this is a last experiment; that human ikill having failed in every efforthuman hope clutches at the resources of nature. A fresh interest has gathered around the vacant chair in the senate, and every word from the patient, as he is borne across the west, is eagerly caught.

Bad as it is to write, yet it is the truth that caught.

Sad as it is to write, yet it is the truth that nobody expects to see Mr. Hill again in the senate. His unfinished term, luminous from its beginning of borrowed luster from the house to its bright course of superb service, is still fresh before the public gaze. Some of his best work was done this session. After his best work was done this session. After the surgeous knife had marred that tongue of wondrous eloquence there was none more commanding in the senate of the United States. No man ever led a busier life in Washington. He gloried in labor and seemed to catch a glow from its exercise so that he was never at his best till seemingly overcome.

In debate it was his delight to be combatted, and the greater the odds In debate it was his delight to be combatted, and the greater the odds the greater his strength appeared. No man ne from the south since the war and has come from the south since the war and made a deeper impress on the national congress. He soon became here, as he is at home, the people's favorite, and I have seen them in the galleries freshen from the fatigue of a dull debate and learn forward to hear the man who always pleased and often thrilled them. To think that if, by the best fortune he may be here again he cannot be his old self again, has addened many a heart. To his distant pilgrimage of pain many a wish for peace from suffering follows him from here as well as from the people of Georgia.

IN THE SENATE.

In the senate the absence of two illustrious men is always noticed. When those two come from the same state it becomes the subject of comment. But when both are absent with one away, probably never to re-turn, and the other suffering from a danger-pus affliction, it is a rare misfortune. Of the thirty-eight states that which had the noblest pair a few weeks ago is now silent at the roll all of the senate and in its councils offers only the mute eloquence of her two vacant thairs.

DEMAND FOR OLD CANNON.

A Suggestion that a Foundry for the Making of Con-demned Ordnance is Needed.

Washington, April 29.—A wag who had been looking over some of the bills before congress, intimated a day or two ago that a bill was to be introduced establishing a foundry for the manufacture of condemned cannon. The absurdity of the suggestion does not anywar to he so great as one might not appear to be so great as one might suppose, when a batch of bills, taken at ran-dom to-day, as they came from the printer, is examined. There are 16 of them calling for condemned cannon and cannon balls. To-peka, Kansas, asks, if the same can be done without detriment to the government, that without detriment to the government, that four condemned cannon and twenty cannon balls be given, to be placed on a monument in memory of deceased soldiers. Mansfield, Ohio, wants two pieces of condemned iron cannon for decorative purposes. Hamilton, Ohio, calls for four cannon of large size and spherical shot. Brandon, Vt., would like to have four pieces of iron cannon. One bill in the senate calls for one cannon for Reading, Penn.; six cannon and balls for Louisville, Ky.; four cannon and 25 balls for Hyde Park, Ill.; six cannon and 12 cannon balls for Memphjs, Tenn., and two cannon and four balls for Marion, Ind. These are not all the requests, but these bills taken up at random call for 96 connon and 130 condemned cannon balls. At this rate the condemned ordnance will soon become-small.

DAILY DEVELOPMENTS

IN THE TRIAL OF THE MURDERERS OF JENNIE CRAMER.

The Finding of the Body, the Post Mor the Exhumation, and the Subsequer Chemical Analysis of the Remains.

The interest in the trial of the murderers of Jennie Cramer continues unabated, the courtroom being constantly filled with eager listeners, many of whom are ladies. During the examination of Dr. Prudden, the judge announced that matters of a delicate nature would be plainly handled, but not a single lady present felt that it was any cause why she should leave. The examination of Dr Chittenden lasted four hours, and was searching and severe. It is noticeable that prosecuting attorney has thus far fully suceeded in keeping the testimony up to the line indicated in his opening statement of the case, Blanche Douglass has not given the Malley boys the slightest recognition since the trial be gan. Friends have gathered around the cousins in court, and have deluged them with cousins in court, and have deluged them with good wishes and prophecies of a safe deliver-ance; but until Friday no one had had a kind word for Miss Douglass. An aged lady with a long black veil walked over to the solitary girl before the opening of court and vouch-safed a few words of womanly sympathy. Blanche treated her politely, and showed no feeling. The scarlet flower on Blanche's jaunty bonnet was the most conspicuous object in the court room. Walter Malley saw it, James Malley, Jr., glanced at it, and spectators pointed at it. The women seems as anxious as ever to attract attention and she is still the central object of curiosity. Walter and James entered with curiosity. Walter and James entered with their winter topcoats over their arms. They flung their coats in their chairs, placed their billycock hats under the rounds and their billycock hats under the rounds and sat down. Walter took occasional notes of the testimony. James sat shoulder to shoulder with him overlooking the notes. The father of Walter entered the room in the forenoon with a smiling friend.

The witness on crossexamination acknowledged that he originally thought Jennie was drowned, but he changed his opinion before the body was moved fro THE POSTMORTEM DESCRIBED.

THE POSTMORTEM DESCRIBED.

The most important witness thus far heard was Dr. L. Mitchell Prudden, and while he was testifying he was listened to with the greatest attention, Judge Granger and ten lawyers making copious notes of what he said. He testified: "I performed a post mortem upon the remains of the girl said to be Jennie Cramer; it was on the 8th of August, 1881; I first examined the body as it lay on the table. Decay had already begun, and on the table. Decay had already begun, and the body was somewhat stiff. On the gener-al surface of the body there were no marks of violence, and the trunk bones were sound. The face neck were of a dusky red color and on the face were numerous scratches and on the face were numerous scratches and small bruises. There were two wounds upon the lower lip with little loss of flesh, the one on the right side being somewhat larger. I on the right side being somewoat larger. I should say that the wounds upon the lip were covered with particles of shells and sand. The surface of the body was smooth. I then examined the teeth, but found nothing particularly and the hearin and arly wrong. I then examined the brain and blood vessels and found more blood in them than usual. The brain was otherwise healthy next examined organs of chest. The heart was healthy. It contained but little blood, most of it was in the left side. The lungs were filled with air containing no water and were healthy. The windpipe was covered with little frothy mucus, and in its upper portion contained a few particles of sand. The tongue and throat were healthy in appearance. There was a little reddish portion contained a few particles of sand. The tongue and throat were healthy in appearance. There was a little reddish fluid in both chest cavities. It was not measured, but I should call it less than half a pint in each cavity. I then examined the stomach. It contained about two ounces of thickish gray fluid mixed with fragments of partly digested food. The gullet contained little mucus, and in its upper three inches were particles of sand. The intestines contained considerable partly digested food of same c aracter as that in stomach. The intestines, spleen, liver and kidney all appeared healthy. The womb was of natural size, but was bent forward and slightly to the left side. The left ovary was healthy, and the right ovary contained a cystic tumor about as large as an English walnut. A portion of the lower lip was remeved for examination, also about one-third of brain, one-fourth of the heart, about two thirds of both lungs, the whole of the tongue and windpipe, about two thirds of the liver, about one half of spleen, both kidneys, the stomach, gullet and intestines. These parts were sealed and taken by Dr. Painter and myself to Yale Medical College, where they were placed in a closet to which I had the only key and the door was sealed by me with three scals. One point I omitted to speak of the external generative organs. I found that decay was so far advanced that I could not determine whether violence had been used or not on the evening of August 8th.

AMCROSCEPIC EXAMINATION.

I took to New York jars containing the stomach and gullet lung and windpipe and generative organs. I examined with microscope first the generative organs, with view of determining presence or absence of semen. I found none. I examined lungs and windpipe; there was no sand in the lungs. I then examined with the microscope a portion of the contents of the stomach, but found no trace of poison. These organs were then brought back to New Haven by me on the evening of August 9. On the 19th Professor Chittenden then took the jar containing the intestines and their contents, the jar containing the lungs and speen and heart and the jar containing the lungs and speen and heart and the jar containing the lungs and speen and heart and the jar containing the lungs and speen and heart and the jar containing the generative organs January 27 of the present year. I, with Professor Chittenden den went to Evergreen cemetery and in the presence of Dr Whittemore, lawyer Fox and Blydenburg and assistants exhumed the body which I identified at once as that of the gril said to have been in life Jennie Cramer. We weighed it; then I delivered to Professor Chittenden certain parts of the body which were placed in jars and carefully taken to the Yale scientific school.

Professor Chittenden testified that there were given him eight sealed jars containing the stomach, assophagus, the liver, the brain, the intestines, the kidneys, the lungs, heart and spleen, the trachea, larynx and tongue, and the genital organs. These were taken from the body at the time of the autopsy. January 27 the exhumation of the body was made in the search for more arsenic than that already found. It was found that the body, as taken from the grave, weighed fifty-seven pounds, the weighing being necessary to ascertain the entire amount of arsenic of the framework. The parts of the body taken this time were put in seven appearing after a time that the witness took a sample of each of the parts for examination, and after ascertaining its component parts used that result upon which to base an estimate of the whole. The following constitutes the amount of white oxide of arsenic found in samples of the internal organs examined by the professor: Stomach and resophagus, 158 of a grain; liver, 100; intestines, 314; kidneys, .020; heart, .023; lungs and spleen, .1146; brain, .0255; trache, larynx and tongue, .018; diaphragm, .01 of a grain. Based on the results obtained as above by chemically examining samples, the professor was finally able to swear that the internal organs named contained, as a whole, 1.1694 grains of white oxide of arsenic, which is the kind usually sold in stores.

JENNIE RECORDED AS DROWNED,

A curious circumstance come out which is, that in West Haven, where Jennie Cramer is ded to have been drowned.

TELLING WHAT HE KNOWS.

Constable Babcock last night had an interview with one William Jones, a painter, sixty years old, who knew Jennie's father in Germany, and has ever since been intimate with the family, so much so that Jennie was in the habit of calling him "Uncle William."

He pretended to have been at West Haven where on Friday evening. Angust 5 and there shore on Friday evening, August 5, and there saw Jennie and another girl in company with two young men, one of the latter of whom he has since recognized from photographs as James Malley. Jones pretended to have preserved silence on this matter because he did not wish to get mixed up in the trial; but having inherited some money and feeling independent, he concluded to unbosom himself. However, when another interviewer called upon Jones he explained that upon further consideration of his story to Babcock he had concluded that he was mistaken as to the data years in the story to be some the data was to the data. his story to baccock he had concluded that he was mistaken as to the date—a very important error—although the other parts of the story were correct. He now thinks the date may have been about Angust 1st; so it is doubtful whether Jones will be summoned.

BLANCHE DOUGLASS'S POSITION.

The Hartford Postsays: "Blanche Douglass will come in at one of the critical points in the case to strengthen the state in its theory and facts. As she sits in the court room she gives the impression to a close observer that she has settled down to a definite conclusion in her own mind as to the result in her own case. There is no anxiety on her part. She has had her course marked out, and knows just what is expected of her—what she will do and what her fate is to be. She is no longer friendly with the Melleys. no longer friendly with the Malleys. They treat her and speak of her with an indifferent contempt, which she returns by keeping her thoughts to herself, and by no sign of reproach. She is evidently passive under the assurances she has had of protection; and we believe it true to say that even the counsel who have been assigned to defend her know less of her relation to the case than do outsiders who have keenly studied the peculiar aspects of the trial and the bearings of the several parties to each other. It is pretty safe to consider Blanché Douglass out of the case, so far as the murdes prosecution against hemself is concerned."

FRAUDS IN FRUIT.

An Extensive System of Undervaluation Discovered in Beston.

Boston, April 29.—Specials allege that important frands have been discovered by the government agents who have been engaged in investigating the affairs of the custom house in connection with the cousignment of house in connection with the cousignment of foreign fruit to that and other ports of the United States. The examination shows that United States. The examination shows that the practice of undervaluation is in vogue in Boston, New York and New Orleans, by which enormous profits have been realized at the expense of the Government. Samples of the cargo of a steamer which arrived in Boston about a month ago, were placed in bond and re-appraised. It proved that the invoice represented about half the actual value of the fruit, and that the government was smilled to double the amount of duties value of the fruit, and that the government was entitled to double the amount of duties it had received. The test was several times repeated, with a like result in the cities named, and also at Philadelphia and Baltimore. It is asserted that the domestic dealers have not been parties to the fraud, they having nothing to do with the invoices, and as the fruit has almost invariably been sold on commission, the profits have some to the foreign shippers.

DALTON DOINGS. Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

Dalton, April 29.—Our city park has been undergoing improvements recently, which adds much to the appearance of it. In a few years we will have the most beautiful park in the south. It is already an honor to our city; a place where youth and beauty mingle in the quiet twilight almost daily. It is a treat to stroll through its cool, shady walks and lowers.

As the East Tennessee, Virginia and Geor gia railroad passenger was nearing Shelby Springs, Ala., a day or two ago, Engineer John T. Burgess, with several others, noticed a man walking toward the track in front. As the man drew near the track he deliberately placed his arm upon the track and allowed the train to cut it off near the wrist. The the train to cut it off near the wrist. The train was stopped within a few yards of the occurrence and the man picked up. He gave his name as Spain; said he lived near the place, but would give no reason for his conduct; supposed to be a little "off;" at least he now has a hand "off."

THE NORCROSS SMALL-POX RUMOR. Special Dispatch to The Constitution.

Norcross, April 29.—The rumor that we had small-pox in Norcross is a mistake. There is a case of small-pox, but in a very light form, about a mile from the town. The locality is strictly guarded by the city authorities and strictly guarded by the city authorities and but little apprehension of its spreading need be felt, besides the people have been extensively vaccinated. The foregoing correction is due us, otherwise many who had expected to spend the summer with us might thereby be deterred. Our village is in perfect health, our climate is delightful, our water pure, our chalybeate spring within 150 yards of the depot, our scenery is attractive and society good. We have a splendid school, under the control of Prof. N. F. Cooledge, one of the leading educators of the state, an elegant, spacious hotel, kept by C. W. Powell, the well known hotel man, and his charming wife and daughters, and we have other attractions to please those who come among us. We are proud of our advantages and do not want exaggerated rumors to go abroad to injure us.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

Dahlonega, April 27.—The verdict of the jury in the case of J. C. Bell was that he was guilty of murder in the first degree. A demurror was entered and entertained and the bill of indictment dismissed (as no bill), because it had not the foreman's name in it, in the case against James Rice, the confederate scout, who was charged with others of taking the life of a deserter whilst in their custody. This was in 1864. Rice was a private in the company, and their has not been any positive proof of his guilt. A verdict of guilty has been rendered against W. Dorsen for burning a still-house. The state docket has been pretty well brought up this week. A larger number of people than usual met at the cemetery on the 26th. Peggy and the Plank. From the McDuffle Journal.

Mrs. Peggy Williams is an aged colored lady, residing near Thomson, and is very fat and pious. It is nothing uncommon for her to residing near Tabinson, and is very int and pious. It is nothing uncommon for her to attend the revival meeting six nights of the week, and shout and sweat till midnight, and then go home and snoreall over the back yard and fifteen acres of land by sunrise. She came to town last Friday morning to take the train for Augusta, dressed principally in a black bombazine frock and a head-handker-chief. For the convenience of the public and train for Augusta, dressed principally in a black bombazine frock and a head-handkerchief. For the convenience of the public and his own amusement, Henry Holliman has placed a thick oak plank across the ditch near the depot from the high embankment, and sloping to the railroad track. It had been raining during the night, and the plank was wet, out of humor and bristling with splinters. But the good lady stepped fearlessly upon it, and the next instant two huge sand-flippers flashed toward the zenith, and Mrs. Peggy waved her arms in the air, sat down on the plank and started on a voyage across the muddy chasm. She seemed to be in a great hurry, and when about half way across she flew the track and disappeared. Fortunately no bones were broken, and, with the help of the night watchman, Mr. Hadley, she climbed out and went home. The seene of the accident looks like a demoralized brick-yard. The plank is utterly ruined. At least one-half of its surface is covered with streaks of blood, patches face is covered with streaks of blood, patches of hide, and pieces of black bembazine and things, and every splinter of importance is missing.

A Good Present.

We are indebted to our clever and kind friend, Mr. J. R. Nichols, for a handsome present in the shape of vegetables. First, when we looked into the basket, we found a when we looked into the basket, we found a nice lot of the most luscious strawberries we have seen this season; then the finest specimens of lettuce raised in this section, and then a good mess of Irish potatoes, and finally some of the largest onions of the present cropethat we have yet seen. Our good friend is as modest as he is clever, and quietly left the office, and we commenced to pencil a note of thanks, but before that was finished he came back again, bringing with him a jar each of preserved peaches and cherries, which taste about as well as they did when first taken from the tree. Mr. Nichols is one of the best farmers and gardeners in this section, and with his proverbial kind-heartedness, he is not forgetful of the poor printer.

BAGWELL'S STORY

CRITICISED BY MR. J. S. JAMES, OF DOUGLASS COUNTY.

The Evidence Tagen Before the Coroner's Jury in Be lation to the Death of Mary Bagwell—Her Fath-er's Contradictory Statement Arout the Matter-Some Mysterious Scenes.

Douglasville, Ga., April 27.—Editors Con

Mr. Willis Bagwell, of the 22d instant. The reason I write this communication is, I find these words used by Mr. Bagwell: "On the second day Mr. James, an attorney from Douglasville, was sent for and the inquest was governed by him and Mr. Camp (or, as he says, Kemp) his amenuensis, did all the writing, and while his employer was making a lengthly speech to the jury, wrote the verdict which the jury subsequently signed, making me and my two sons cognizant of the murder of a girl who is yet alive." In replying to these words it will be necessary for me to say something about the evidence, and to give a brief statement of the inquest held over the bones found in the Hill copper shaf; but before I proceed to do this I take occasion here to say, that to take the above words as they are used by Mr. Bagwell, altogether, they speak a willful, malicious, unqualified falsehood. Mr. Bagwell had an article published in the Douglasville Star recently which I thought demanded a reply from me. I did reply to it, and I suppose that controversy gave rise to and to induce other negroes to run away with demanded a reply from me. I did reply to it, and I suppose that controversy gave rise to the "interview" above mentioned. In his piece in the Star he made some very erroneous, unmanly charges against me. I will not here repeat it, but those who wish to see the two two articles can do so by reference to the 4th and 11th files of the Star of April, 1882. He, it does seem to me, would do well to allow men, when they are engaged to perform a professional duty under their oaths, not to try to make them appear, after they have done so, contemptible and degraded before the public by such disregard of truth as here repeat it, but those who wish to see the two two articles can do so by reference to the 4th and 11th files of the Star of April, 1882. He, it does seem to me, would do well to allow men, when they are engaged to perform a professional duty under their oaths, not to try to make them appear, after they have done so, contemptible and degraded be fore the public by such disregard of truth as is shown in his words above set forth. I did all I could to ascertain the truth about this mysterious and sad murder; nothing more, nothing less.

What Mr. Bagwell says about Mr. Camp what Mr. Bagwell says about Mr. Camp (Kemp) being my amanuensis is an unmitigated falsehood. Mr. Camp was employed by Coroner Mitchell to write down the evidence, and he was not in my employ in any way, shape, manner or form. While I was recapitulating the evidence, Mr. Camp wrote out a form of a verdict for the jury, leaving blank spaces for the insertion of such names blank spaces for the insertion of such names as the jury might find to insert, and the en-tire part of the verdict charging Willis Bagas the jury might find to insert, and the entire part of the verdict charging Willis Bagwell and his sons with being cognizant of the murder was added by the jury after they had retired. Mr. Bagwell shows his want of consistency and veracity when he charges that the coroner's jury would allow any one outside to dictate a verdict for them, for he went home with Mr. Henry Ward, one of the jurors, the night after the verdict was rendered, stayed all night with him, and Mr. Ward is one of his bondsmen. Still he indirectly s one of his bondsmen. Still he indirectly charges Mr. Ward with falsifying his oath.

THE JURY. You have once had the names of the jury published in your paper, hence it is unnecessary to give them again. I will say, however, they are all as good men as this county affords. Among them were some of Mr. Bagwell's warmest friends, one a minister of the Baptist church, that Mr. Bagwell prates so much about having belonged to so long, but like good citizens and honorable men they made their verdict from the law and evidence, and did not allow friendship nor anything else to swerve them from their duty; and any insinuation that they made any verdict but their own, is, in my judgment, an outrageous, malignant slander inflicted upon the characters of good and true men who (not by their own choice) were called to hold this inquest. And that, too, by a man whose vindictive spleen and ambition has no regard for the satisfactory conclusion. All: Bagwell says in his "interview" he made searches and inquiries for his daughter. Here is some of his evidence: "I never did made any inquiry for Mary of my neighbors or where I lived; don't know the reason why I did not; cannot name any person I ever asked about her; have been asked often if I had heard anything from her; don't know who asked me; cannot name any person; I told Ferrall thing from her; don't know who asked me; cannot name any person; I told Ferrell Harper it was no use to hunt for her; never spoke to one of my neighbors about her in my life, as I know of; made no search for her, except looked about the field some; don't know where she is; think, perhaps, these may be her bones; nave no idea she killed herself; don't remember the last consecution. versation I had with her; never have heard any reliable news from her since she left; I fin-ally became convinced, after she had been gone several years, she was dead; I know of no other person who ever disappeared from this part of the country. I never made any investigation as to her whereabouts; never thought it nec-essary. Mr. Bob Velvin, Willis Bagwell's sonessary. Mr. Bob Velvin, Willis Bagwell's son-in-law, went to Bagwell a day or two after Mary disappeared, and told Bagwell that if he (Bagwell) would give him (Velvin) a rope and a double-barrel shotgun he would take Barrey Hargroves and find Mary in a few hours. Bagwell told him no; it is no use, she is gone, Bagwell told him no; it is no use, she is gone, and we will never see her sgain—let her go. Mr. Sheats, a brother-in-law of Mr. Bagwell's, told him before Mary disappeared, that he believed the negro Hargroves was the father of Mary's child. Still Bagwell kept the negro at his house, according to the evidence, until the next spring, and when the negro was arrested for burglary, Wyley Bagwell went on his bond for his appearance at a commital court; and the only time the negro has ever been seen by any of Bagwell's neighbors since he escaped from the officer, he and Willis Bagwell were in close conversation. Other witnesses said that the night she disappeared there was a woman's voice heard in the direction of Mr. Bagwell's lamenting, screaming, and seened to be begging for mercy. Thirty-five witnesses, amon't them his brother-in-law and other relatives, and his nearest neighbors, all swear that none of the Bagwell family ever made any search or inquiry for her. The state will be able to prove that the night she left or disappeared that the Bagwells carried her off, notwithstanding they all swear she, went off in the dark hours of night, and no one of the family knew anything about it. The state will further show that Mary protested against going, and they carried her anyhow. If this is true, that they did carry her off by force, and now all swear they knew nothing about her disappearance, it seems to me that it shows, to say the least of it, a little dark side to the picture. Take into consideration her condition at the time she left, and further, that Mr. Bagwell nor any of his family, especially the three charged with this crime, ever made any search for her nor asked a single person about her in their lives, so far as is known, and when men would offer to hunt her, they would say, "It is no use," and at the same time say that she did not have good sense, and was not bright. Bah', his duplicity is no transparent that it may be read by a John Gilpin, and is more disgusting than transparent. This is not one teat and we will never see her again—let her go Mr. Sheats, a brother-in-law of Mr. Bagwell'

while I was one of the counsel of ar. Walson, I do not think I was so enlisted in his behalf as to be altogether incompetent to form an opinion of the judge's conduct. In my opinion the settlement was not only legal but proper, and I have not the shadow of a suspicion that the judge acted from any other than a conscientious conviction that he was doing right. doing right.

I was present at the McDuffie superior court when the case of the state vs. Thomas E. Watson was settled, and while I was not the attorney of either party, I am familiar with the facts and circumstances which brought it in effecting the settlement, which I would not have done had I not known that the judge had both the legal right and power to order the same.

is missing, (according to the sworn statement of Willis Bagwell, which fact appears in his evidence above given), in all this country. When last seen she had puff combs, like the one found, also a breastpin and ribbon like those found. A woman's bones, together with some infant's bones, were found. Whose are they? Certainly some wo-man and a child, if not Mary Bagman and a child, if not Mary Bag-well and her babe's. Let her father produce her and stop this hypocritical cant of his, and then the people who know him and believe him guilty will be satisfied that he is innocent, but they will never, in my opinion, see Mary Bagwell again until Gabriel sounds his trum-pet. Very respectfully,

JUDGE SNEAD INDORSED.

Letter From the Augusta Bar and Others on Hi From the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist. Augusta, Ga., April 27.—Hon. Clairborne Snead, City—Dear Sir: We have observed with sincere regret, in the Chronicle and Constitutionalist of 25th instant, the proceedings of a precision of the chicago ngs of a meeting of some of the citizens of McDuffle county, at which your administra-tion of the law in that county was severely condemned.

We heartily indorse your purpose to refrain from taking any notice of the meeting.

Our relations as members of this bar to the high and responsible station you hold and the administration of law and the maintenance of the respect due to our courts and udicial officers call upon us thus to address

In our opinion the law rests in you alone the power to allow a settlement of criminal cases, without regard to the assent or dissent of the solicitor-general. While the evidence upon which your administration in McDuffie unty was condemned is not furnished in the published proceedings of the meeting, and we are not personally acquainted with the facts and circumstances under which you allowed the settlement of the case of the allowed the settlement of the case of the State vs. Thomas E. Watson, we have observed nothing of your administration of the law in this county that would authorize us to suspect that in the case named you acted other than as an upright judge should act.

Your record as a public officer does not need our support against such charges as were preferred in said meeting, but inasmuel as you ferred in said meeting, but inasmuch as you have been assailed and your position forbids you to enter upon a defense of yourself, we feel called upon, as an act of simple justice to your official position and your judicial career, s far as it bas fallen under minished esteem and confidence in your fidelity, integrity and competency.

With the internal affairs of McDuffle county ve have no concern and are not disposed to intermeddle, but the participants in the late meeting made its action a matter of public interest by directing the publication of its proceedings, not only in the county paper, but the Chronicle and Constitutionalist, of this city, and a leading journal at the capita of the ssate.

We feel, therefore, justified in expressing

We feel, therefore, justified in expressing our unqualified and emphatic oppos. On to the method adopted by the McDuffie county meeting to redress any wrong in the administration of the law by the courts.

In the name of justice—without notice or an opportunity to be heard and upon charges too general and vague to be answered, this meeting passed condemnation upon you. As far as we know, such proceedings are without precedent, contrary to the spirit of our insti-tutions and should be emphatically opposed, as tending to bring the officers of the law and its administration into disrepute.

The judge upon the bench is amenable to the law as the humblest citizen, and should be held as the lowest official to an honest and be field as the lowest official to an honest and faithful discharge of official duty, but the fail-ure to discharge this duty should be passed upon by the proper tribunals established for the purpose, and not a meeting of citizens, however respectable, called from among those who are dissatisfied with the administration of public effairs and when were activations. however respectable, called from among those who are dissatisfied with the administration of public affairs and who meet, as there is reason in this case to believe, not to calmly and imparcially investigate and determine, but to promulgate a judgment already formed. Such a course we deem unjust as a precedent, fraught with the greatest danger to the best interests of society. The course of the citizens who held this meeting must, we think, appear improper to very slight reflection, when it is remembered, that they not only passed upon the fidelity of your administration, but exercised the power of an apellate tribunal and passed upon the legality of your conduct—a function that belongs exclusively to the supreme court of the state. This impropriety is made still more glaring by the fact, that among those who held this extraordinary meeting there does not appear in the published proceedings, as far as we know, the name of any one who ever made the law a study.

We indulge the hope that a large majority of the good citizens of McDuffle county will, with us, disapprove the action of this meeting, and the gentlemen themselves who participated in it will be brought by calmer reflection to regret it.

There are reasons to believe that this attack therpated in with the bloaget by the flection to regret it.

There are reasons to believe that this attack was directed against you as the judge of the court, but inasmuch as it might be the opinion of some that the terms used are broad in the saliester general of the enough to embrace the solicitor general of the circuit, we desire to express our unshaken confidence in his fidelity, integrity and gated by a jury of this county, I forbear giving any more proof of it to the public at present, I would not do so now but that Mr. Bagwell has made this second attack on the jury and myself.

Now, in conclusion, I say that the people of this county are too just to punish an innocent man, and if Mary is alive, as he says, let him bring her up; that will satisfy everybody and exalt him higher than he has ever been before in his life, but unless he does this, the stigma is upon him and all he can write or say will not remove it. If she is alive, he is certainly a very remarkably strange man. He had Dan Bar and Marion Stocks arrested for the murder of his child, who, he says, is still in life, and tried to drive me from the case by force when I was defending them, but did not accomplish his purpose. He did not have them arrested until he found out that perhaps he would be charged with the murder himself, and in order that he might cast suspicion off of himself, he was willing to convict two innocent negroes who did not know Mary. They were discharged for the want of evidence. Unless Mr. Bagwell does bring his daughter up, his case will certainly be brought before the courts of this county and an impartial investigation had. So far as I am individually concerned, I stick to what I have done and said in the court house and out of it, and if Mr. Bagwell don't believe it, let him try me. I think it would be best for him to keep quiet; he might have the death of some one else laid at his door who has long ago passed into another world.

Now about those missing parties he claims I will add to my concurrence in the foregoing that I witnessed the proceedings in the case of the State vs. Thomas E. Watson. While I was one of the counsel of Mr. Watson.

to vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BIT-TERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

> 501 N. Fremont St., Baltimore During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago it brought on paraly-sis, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving. G. DECKER.

of an Island.

From the Chicago Tribune.

New Orleans, La., April 24.—The British steamsh p Jesmond has arrived at this point from Messina with a cargo of fruit. Captain Robson reports a remarkable discovery. He says that when about 200 miles to the westward of Madeira his attention was called to the singular appearance of the sea. The water had a dark, muddy look, and was covered with dead fish as far as the eye could reach. They were of several species, among them being noticed mullet cod and bass. Soon after entering this field of dead fish he observed a faint smoke on the horizon nearly ahead on the course of the vessel.

Early the next morning the captain was awakened by the second officer, and informed that land had been sighted in the course of the steamer. He was greatly surprised at this information, knowing that there was no land in this part of the Atlantic. Upon going on deck, however, he found that the report was correct. The dim outlines of an island, broken by mountain peaks, were visible even without the use of the glass. Above it hung a cloud of smoke. ble even without the use of the glass. Above it hung a cloud of smoke. The water was more turbid than on the previous day, and the shoal of dead fish thicker.

Captain Robson deemed it advisable to take soundings, not expecting, however, to get bottom, as the charts show a depth of from 2,000 to 3,000 fathoms in that portion of the Atlantic. For some time the sounding was without result, but suddenly the line brought bottom of fifty fathoms. When about four leagues distant from the island the Jesmond came to anchor in seven fathoms of water. came to anchor in seven fathoms of water. The island was located 25 degrees 40 minutes west, 25 degrees north. Captain Robson dewest, 25 degrees north. Captain Robson de-termined to make an examination of the strange land. The yawl was lowered and the captain and one of his officers were rowed to the island. A landing was effected on the low coast of the western border, where a con-venient harbor was found for the yawl. The captain and several of the crew with some difficulty ascended the decivity. The prom-ontory seemed several miles in length and joined an extensive tableau, which sloped gently back to a chain of mountains sloped gently back to a chain of mountains at a great distance off, from which rose light columns of smoke. The surface of the ground was covered with pumice stone, and volcanic was covered with pumice stone, and volcanic debris, and entirely destitute of vegetation. It was a desolate scene, where not a single living thing was perceived.

The captain and his company started on a tour inland, but soon found their progress impeded by yawning chasms. It was, therefore, determined to return to the beach and inspect the inland from that side. While examining the base of the cliff where the rock was fractured and twisted as if by some tremendous convulsion, and disclosed a bed of breccia, a surprising discovery was made by one of the sailors. On thrusting the prong of a boat-hook into the loosened mass of gravel, he disloged a stone arrow-head. Excited by this incident, the search was continued, and he disloged a stone arrow-head. Excited by this incident, the search was continued, and other articles of stone were discovered. A large excavation was made, and it was ascer tained that the opening led between the crumbling remains of what must have been massive walls. A number of articles were exhumed, such as bronze swords, rings, hammers, carvings of heads and figures of birds and animals, and two vases of jars with fragments of bones, and one cranium almost entire.

The most singular thing brought to view was what appeared to be a munmy, contained in a stone case. It was so incrusted with volcanic deposits as to be scarcely dis-tinguished from the rock itself. Much diffi-culty was experienced in dislodging the sar-cophagus, which was finally taken out whole, and, with the fossils, transported to the Captain Robson would have continued this investigation, but as the aspect of the weather became less favorable, and he could not afford to spend more time at the island, he sailed for this port. He considers that the new island was raised from the sea by volcanic action, and that the fish were killed by the poisonous gases from the volcano. The captain thinks that the new land is a section of the infimense ridge known to exist in the Atlantic, and of which the Azores and Canaries are a part. He took pleasure in exhibiting the fossils and curious articles of which he was the fortunate finder. The carved heads are in the Egyptian style of sculpturing, being distinguished by the veil of hood which characterizes Egyptian figures. The urns and vases are spherical, with large mouths, and upen them may be discerned in Captain Robson would have continued this The urns and vases are spherical, with large mouths, and upon them may be discerned inscriptions in hereglyphics. The edges of the axes and arrow of spear heads are blunted and jagged. The word is a straight weapon of bronze, with cross hilt. Captain Robeson proposes to present the relies to the British museum at London upon his return to Liverpool.

FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

An Adirondeek Landlord's Terrific Struggle for Life.

E. R. Derby, the landlord of the Prospect house, Saranac lake, was, says the Troy Times, the hero of a very exciting exploit, Friday afternoon. While driving from the trospect house to Bloomingdale, in passing through the woods he heard cries for help proceeding from a rivine a few rods distant from from a rivine a few rods distant from the road. Springing from his carriage and running hastily to the edge of the ravine, Mr. Derby saw an infuriated bear raging around running hastily to the edge of the ravine, Mr. Derby saw an infuriated bear raging around the trunk of a small maple, eagerly trying to dislodge Gardiner Maloney, a well known Saranac guide, who had taken refuge in the branches of the tree. With genuine heroism Mr. Derby drew his revolver, a Smith & Wesson seven-shooter, forty-four caliber, and rushed to the rescue. Skilled in woodcraft, he was enabled to creep unobserved by the bear to within a short range, when he opened fire on the bruce. The only effect of these was to distract the attention and increase the fury of the bear, who abandoned the siege of Maloney and directed his attention to Mr. Derby. He charged furiously man that configurations who could be a second to the siege of the second that the secon discharged two more shots with wonderful precision at the head of the approaching brute, and, turning, beat a hasty retreat in the direction of the road. The speed told rapidly upon Mr. Derby, who turns the scales at 230 pounds, but he made a tremendous effort to each his team a pair of spirited young the direction of the road. Unfortunately, the horses, excited by the fring, were on the alert, and cat hing sight of the bear, ran furiously down the road, leaving Mr. Derby to settle with the bear. Not a moment was to be lost. The quick eye of Mr. Derby discovered a tree near by. Springing into tit over branches, he reached a point of safety half dead from exhaustion. The bear, bieding profusely from many wounds, was undaunted and aggressive, and did not leave the enemy long to arrange a new campaign, but began the ascent of the tree. ## ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 30, 1882.

THE signal service bureau report indicate for Georgia to-day, local rains, followed by clearing weather, winds shifting to northerly, higher barometer, stationary or lower tem

Lynch, the Mississippi negro, is seated in the national house of representatives. He was admitted by a strict party vote, and all the time wasted in the discussion of his admission might as well have been saved.

It is a sufficient answer to those who know nothing of Mr. Stephens's intention to quote the understanding that exists in his entourage that if he runs for governor he runs as the candidate of the democratic party pure and simple; and not on any catchpenny claptrap arrangement of a fugleman and a bombarbier or two which calls itself a party and shouts for anyone and everyone to come and stand as its nominee.

CROP indications are always more or less deceitful; but still they aftord ample data for venturing deductions from. The New York Times of Thursday prints four solid pages of reports from all parts of the United States, which are briefly summarized elsewhere. So far as they go there is little exception that can be taken to the estimates of such states as we are familiar with, and on this basis the same may be assumed of all. The conclusion to be drawn from the Times. report is that the crops to be harvested in 1882 are nearly all above the average in yield, and far ahead of last year. In the northwest, for instance, the spring wheat crop is fifty per cent larger than last year. This is all very satisfactory, but the great body of the cereal crops may yet be nipped badly by frost.

THE SMALL-POX OVER.

For five days there has not been a single new case of small-pox in Atlanta.

Every person who has the disease is put in absolute quarantine, and as more than a confined, and since any citizen has been exposed, we are reasonably safe in presuming that the disease has spent its force, and that we shall have no more trouble with it. Every single case in the city is traceable directly to the one case of Myra Hightower or cases springing from it. This case came from an imported one. The city is thoroughly vaccinated. At one time there were seven centres from which the disease might have the absurd prejudices and suspicions with spread-i. e., there were seven cases in dif- which they regard the white democrats. ferent localities to which different sets of are moved to write these things in the hope people were exposed. The fact that only of doing good, and yet we may as well comsix new cases resulted from the hundreds of pose an address to the wind. exposures to these seven cases is pretty good evidence that our people were even then fairly protected. Since then, during the past week, at least 4,000 additional people have been vaccinated.

We ask simple justice to Atlanta that our contemporaries of the state press will lay these facts before their readers. From these facts the presumption is plain that the worst of the small-pox scare is over, and that the chances are that not another case will be de-

OUR COLORED FRIENDS.

A very disheartening feature of the rela tions between the colored people of Georgia and their real friends-and we mean by their real friends the white people who have been raised with them and who know their good points as well as their failings-is the fact that they regard with suspicion every effort that is made to better their condition or to bring about that assimilation of sentiment in regard to the progress and prosperity of the state and all its citizens which is absolutely essential to the welfare of the body politic. We do not mean the assimilation of political sentiment. The white people may divide into parties and pursue each other with apparent rancor, as witness some of the memorable campaigns in Georgia before the war; but, at the bottom of these divisions, behind all the rancor and fury of politics, there is a unity of sentiment, a profound regard for the suggestions of patriotic citizenship, which has an eye single to the welfare of society and the safety of the state. No merely political considerations-no results of partisanship are allowed to interfere with this feel-

We have had frequent occasion to test the curious suspicion on the part of our colored friends, to which we allude, for THE CONstitution has been foremost in defending them when they have needed defense, and in befriending them when it seemed that they needed friends. Our attitude toward them has always been full of hope and confidence, and we may be allowed to say, without magnifying the influence that every Bible is the result of skylarking indulged in by the public journal must wield to a greater or les extent, that the prompt and earnest manne in which THE CONSTITUTION has urged their claims upon the good will of the southern people has been the means of securing protection for the colored people in quarters where prejudice might be supposed to exist.

The effect of all this upon the negroes has been sometimes amusing, sometimes irritating, but more frequently disheartening. THE Constitution has been classed among the "suspects," so to speak. Our ns have been misinterpreted; our been "viewed alarm" by the newly-fledged politicians of the race. They have imagined that our good offices, so far as our purposes were concerned, amounted to an attempt to sethem into the democratic party, and from their inflamed point of view, Ir is said that Mr. Pat Calhoun has made a would be equivalent to going back into slavery. Some of the weeklies edited by colored nen have been pleased to observe that "for "a bourbon paper, The Constitution treats us fairly, but it need not hope to toll us into "the democratic party." The quotation we have made was put in print months and month ago by a very intelligent colored editor, (speaking comparatively,) and at a time when we were engaged in denouncing as they deserved certainly cowardly assaults that had been made upon negroes by armed bands of white men.

The peculiarity of this is the mysunreasonable fact that the friendly attitude of THE CONSTITUTION should have placed comparatively intelligent colored men upon the defensive. At the bottom of this must lie, we suppose, the race problem which is given to the southern people to solve, for the suspicion of the negro editor, and the thousand and one similar manifestations that must have attracted the attention of thoughtful observers, are obviously based upon a wholly irrelevant desire on the part of the epresentatives of the race to draw the color ine, so far as the advice or the intentions of a outhern democrat, or a southern democratic paper, is concerned.

We do not allude to these things in a spirit of complaint, for they are not matters to complain about. They afford food for reflection and material for comment, but nothing more. They are not hopeful signs, but we have witnessed manifestations far less hopeful. When the race and its leaders repudiated and drove to his death the man who did more to make the freedom of the negro possible than all other persons and influences combined, the fact was a fair warning to all concerned not to expect too speedy a solution of any problem having to do with the relations between the sentiments of the negro and his duties as a citizen. Indeed, we have anticipated all the difficulties from the first, and we have known that the attitude of THE Constitution and of the democrats of Georgia would be misconstrued, misinterpreted an viewed with suspicion by the colored people; and we have been waiting patiently for the results of education and experience to make themselves felt ever so faintly. Our attention has been called anew to the subject by the colored convention held in Ma con during the past week under the auspices of Jeff Long and other leaders, who supposed to represent the educational progress of the race. The proceedings of that convention are only worthy of consideration in this connection; and the indications are that we will still have to wait as patiently as before for any sign that the colored people have progressed to the point of understanding and appreciating their relations to the state as citizens. One of their greatest complaints is in regard to the color line, and yet they draw it as they draw their razors, and persist in keeping it in sight from year's end to year's end. Notwithstanding the fact that the laws of week has elapsed since the last of them was Georgia make no distinctions on ac adcount of race or color, they hold conventions | sa as black men instead of citizens, go into politics as black men instead of citizens, and vote as black men instead of citizens. This is deplorable, so far as the negroes are concerned,

But let him, by the votes of his fellow citizens, become Judge John Smith, and he pays nothing. Every time he enters a car he, in effect, receives three cents a mile for the trip, as the company's addition to his salary. The people give him so many dollars a day for being judge. He is thus in the pay of the people and in the pay of the railroad company. The people pay him for his services—to whom? That is the question."

A week ago a Boston paper made a calculation that at least one-half of the inhabitants of that city were church goers, and drew the conclusion, with a something of a "holier-than-thou" air, that an uncommonly high state or morality prevailed there. Some learned and talented people live in Boston, and doubtless some very good ones, but there are also some uncommonly mean specimens. The latest and meanest who has yet appeared is Police Judge J. Wilder May. A man brought before him for committing an indecent assault upon a respectable woman, who was crossing the common at 1 o'clock at night, was discharged, the judge giving as a reason, that no woman had any business out at that hour. The assault was proved, the woman's screams bringing the police to the rescue, and the man had nothing to say in externation.

THACKERAY AND DICKENS.

geant Ballantine's Memories of the Two Gre

Philadelphia Press Correspondence What our Sergeaut has to say about Thackeray i characteristic, but unjust to the great novelist. In the room at the Piazza tavern occupied by the Shakspeare club, he first met the author of "Vanity Fair." He had never seen him before, but his ap pearance commanded the attention of the barris ter. He describe's Thackeray's face as having been disfigured by a blow received in boyhood, and "in repose would have been called plain. Although characterized by great solidity, it was only when h lifted his eyes that it became illumined, and the bserver felt that it was one of rare intelligence. The barister does not pretend to admire, Thackeray'. great genius. Neither did he find him an agreeabl companion. "He was very egotistical, greedy of flattery, and sensitive of criticism to a ridiculou extent. He may have possessed great powers of conversation, but did not exhibit them upon occa sions when I had an opportunity of judging. He did not hesitate to introduce his associates and the members of his club into his novels, and one of these latter, a curious compound of drollery and simplicity named Archdeckne, figures in 'Pendennis' under the name of Foker.'' Archdeckne, however, was very much flattered by the celebrity he obtained through Thackeray's novel. The last time Sergeant Ballantine saw Thackeray was about three weeks before his death. 'He was sitting alone at a table at Evans', dozing over an obscure Irish journal, in which some derogatory remarks about himself were published. He attributed them to an individual whom I need not name and was intensely angry, which I confess I thought at the time was eminently absurd. His description, however, of the Irish in many of his works was not calculated to make him popular in that country.' Another member of the Shakespeare Club was John Forster, the biographer of Dickens. "His nembers of his club into his novels him. He told a story well, and never prosily; he was a capital listener, and in conversation was not in the slightest degree dictatorial. He, like Thackeray, was very sensitive, and I remember a period when his conduct had been so misinterpreted that when his conduct had been so misinterpreted that he suffered agonies. He was the best after-dinner epeaker I ever heard." Sergeant Ballantine and a Mr Spicer had put him up at the Union club, and "to their great grief the news of his death reached them upon the day on which he would have been elected."

A REAL OLD-FASHIONED LOVE STORY. From the Butte Inter-Mountain. Forty-eight years ago John Saunders, one of the wealthiest cautle-kings of Montana, who was then a poor youth, with nothing to recommend him but a poor youth, with nothing to recommend him but a spotless reputation and a brave heart, became enavored of a Kentucky belle whose father was a rich man. His tenderness was reciprocated, but the parent of the young lady refused his consent to the marriage and was inexorable. Young Saunders was too honorable to press his suit in a family where his presence was unwelcome. He sought an interview with the girl's parent, who for the twenty-third and last time told him to abandon all hope of and last time told him to abandon all hope of marriage as far as his 'daughter was concerned, as the difference in their social positions was an insurmountable barrier. "How much are you worth?" asked the young lover. "Transfer my property into $1,000,000 cash," was the haughty reply. "Very well," answered young Saunders. "to morrow morning I leave for

The young man kept his promise after a long and sorrowful interview with his inamorator, and with a small outit, struck out bravely for the western territories. Since that time forty-eight years have elapsed, during which, with varying success, he has dipped into numerous enterprises, from the British line to Sonora. He came to Montana in early days and embarked in the cattle business with a firm of Helena, with such success that the firm now owns nearly 20,000 head on the Toton. About a month ago Saunders figured up his assets, concluded he was worth $1,000,000, and left for Kentucky. He found the love of his young days waiting for him, confident and hopeful of his final arrival. The two were married with as little everemony as possible. They arrived in Butte this evening, and, after a short visit, will proceed to their home in the Toton valley, where the groom is greatly respected.

A PRINCESS'S BHIDAL DRESS.

The Bress Work and the Cake Enten by the Princes Relen, Wife of the English Prince Leopold.

Helen, Wife of the English Prince Leopold. The wedding dress of Prince Helen was given by her sister, the Queen of Holland. It was made in Paris and was not finished until yesterday. The petitional is of the richest white satin, with several small openings near the bottom, showing a thick wreath of orange blossoms and myrtle underneath it. It is trimmed with two robings of the costliest point d'Alencon lace coming down either side, turned with square corners toward a white satin train, in the draperies of which it disappears. The train is of immense length and is literally sown with flakes of silver, while large bouquets of fleur de lis in relief are embroidered in silver all down the center of it. It is edged with shell-like flutings of satin intermingled with point d'Alencon. The dress has short sleeves trimmed to march with point d'Alencon and wreath of myrtle and orange blossoms. The royal bride cake is built in three tiers. It rises from a gold stand to the height of rix feet and weighs two hundred pounds. At the base are swans and dolphins swimming in imitation water. The first tier is ornamented with four medallion groups representing Europe, Asia, Africa and America, separated by pillars on which is painted a lily upon satin. On the pillars are vases filled with flowers emblematic of the United Kingdom. Cupids reading support the figure of literature. The second tier is octagonal in form, and the medallions bear the arms of England and Waldeck with the royal monograms. On the pillars are vases filled with flowers emblematic of the United Kingdom. There are many real lovers of flowers who have the first requisite for a garden—the land—who let the surroundings of the house fall into neglect, merely because they cannot afford to buy plants with which to ornament them. It is possible in most pariso if the country to make a beautiful garden without the outlay of a dollar for plants. Could the persons referred to visit European gardens or even see European catalogues they would find that the common plants around them are elsewhere highly valued. Aside from the trees, there are many strubs that may find a place in the garden and a host of herbacous plants from which a proper selection will keep a garden gay the whole growing season.

tion will keep a garden gay the whole growing season.

Take our common lilies, for example. Aside from the far west, there are three common in the states east of the Mississippi; two of them are low, not over three feet high, and common in meadows, while the tailer "Superb Lity." in rich, swampy places, is six or eight feet high and bears a pyramid of ten to thirty or more flowers. If one should make a collection of these native lities he would be surprised at the great variety likey present among themselves, not only in the size and number of the flowers, but especially in their coloring. One could make a collection of these native lities and by careful selection find a great variety among them. So with many other native plants, which will amply repay the care that may be given to them, and one can easily stock a garden from the woods and fields.

It is late now to take up most wild plants, but it s well to mark all attractive specimens for future removal. For marking shrubs for removal to the garden it is well to carry in the pocket a piece of cotton cloth and tie a strip to any desirable plant; when the leaves have fallen the ends of the trip of cloth may be seen at a long distance and indicate

The Paglilst Sallivan's Sentence.

Boston, April 29.—"Three months in the house of correction" was the edict of the police court to day against John L. Sullivan puglilst, straigned on a complaint for assault. The court room was full of hard hitters when the case was called. Robbins, the complainant, testified that he went into an Elliot street place with a friend, had a glass of beer, and started to go cut. Meeting sullivan and a Mr. Murphy on the way, he accosted the latter, whom he knew, with the remark: "I guess you're too late to get in on the right eye," whereupon Sullivan knocked him down and kicked him. Robbin's right eye looks bad, his arms are covered with black and blue spots, and he has a wound on the left side of his face from which pieces of his fractured is awbone are coming out. The story was corroborated by police officers and others, who testified that Robbins was sober. Sullivan testified in his own behalf. He said that he encountered Robbins in the doorway of the saloon trying to get out. Sullivan didn't give way, and Robbins struck him twice in the mouth. Then Sullivan pushed Robbins away and did not know how he got bruised. In cross-examination he said he had no regular business. He had been a pugilist, but was not now. also in the market. Strawberries are now within reach of people of ordinary incomes. The price has fallen of its own weight to 20 cents, and the best quality can be bought for 25 cents a box. A still further decline is expected during the next few days. The berries of the last few days are a slight improvement in appearance over those of two weeks ago. They are of a better color. In the way of chickens the market is we'l supplied. Hens are selling at 35 cents. Eggs are scarce, and sell at 20 cents. Two dozen sell for 25 cents. Butter of good quality is still scarce, and brings 50 cents. Oleomargarine brings 25 cents and upward, according to the ignorance of the buyer. The market is well stocked with various sorts of manufactured articles called butter and sold as such, but which probably never saw the inside of a churn. In the fish market there is a plentiful supply of several kinds of fish. Snappers at 10 cents a pound seem to be holding the leading place. James river shad are among the delicacies, and sell at from 25 to 60 cents. Salmon are scarce and sell at the cents whiting are very popular and sell well at 35 cents a string. There are a few blue fish in the market at ten cents. There are a few catish at ten cents apound. Multet are scarce at eight cents. Sheephead are scarce, but are in demand and sell at ten cents. ## SHOOTING SILVEY.

Two Head Brethers Shoot a Young Man and Break Up a Spelling Bee.

Mr. Spurgeon Silvey, who resides with his mother near Gammage's store, was snot and dangerously wounded about ten o'clock last night at Gilbert's school house five miles east of town.

There was a spelling bee at the school house and Mr. Silvey was among those who were present. Immediately after the exercises were over rnd as Mr. Silvey stepped into the yard he was accosted by Brewer Head, a young man, who said: "I understand you want to whip me, and now i will give you a chance."

THE SMALL-POX.

other Day on Which No Cases Develop-A Circula For a week now there has not a case of small-pox eveloped in the city. The last case was that of Mr. Frobell's nephew, Mr. Moore, whose case was oing well vesterday and his friends were very 1. Only one other case has been develo smong the white population. Last week Mr. Wilam Ivie was taken. He died last night at 11 o'clock liam Ivie was taken. He died last night at 11 o'clock Yesterday there were two deaths at the hospital. Jim Lamar and Richard Wadley, two aged negro men, died. This leaves eleven persons down with the disease at the hospital and two in the city. The physicians in the city are very hopeful and many are confident that the disease is about at an end and that there will be few if any more new cases. There were very few rumors on the streets yesterday, but the supposed cases that were reported were carefully examined and 'none of them were pronounced small-pox, One supposed case was reported on Forsyth st-eet, but it was not small-pox, and in reference to it The Constitutions was asked to publish the following card:

the small-pox. I hereby certify that he is not even sick, nor has he been recently.

Yesterday Dr. T. S. Powell, the state vaccine agent, prepared a circular which he will send along to the ordinaries with the virus which he will send out. The circular will be ready Monday and gives instructions as to the best way to vaccinate, and the preper course to be pursued.

Among other things Dr. Powell says. "It is possible to exclude small-pox from any given community or, if introduced, to prevent its spread from the first case or cases that may occur. No disease can be so easily prevented as small-pox, and its spread in any place is evidence of carelessness or ignorance of the importance of vaccination on the part of citizens.

It is exceedingly important not only that every one should be vaccinated in infancy, but that re-vaccination should be performed in every case when the small-pox is prevailing in the country. The fact that a vaccine sear may present a genuine appearance containing a number of the characteristic pits, etc., should not be relied upon as infallible evidence of protection, or as a reason for omitting re-vaccination, for it has been found that the exceptional cases above referred to may occur in cases of this character, when in other cases of a faint, imperfect scar, with perhaps only ose pit, the protection has been perfect and absolute. It is therefore important that everybody should be vaccinated when the disease is in the community. It would be well that physicians in the villages and in the country now supply them selves with vaccine virus, which can be procured at any one of the several drug stores in Atlanta, and by vaccinating a number of healthy young persons who have never been vaccinated and secure from these a supply of fresh, genuine virus with which to vaccinate others. Either bovine or humanized virus will answer if properly procured."

THE INTERCEPTED KISS.

rom the Boston Post. The Boston ros.

'Tis very sweet
When maidens meet
And with tender kisses each other greet,
In fondest seeming
That sets to dreaming
The masculines who stand and see't;
It is a tantalizing scene,
For optics sensitive. I ween,

For optics sensitive. I ween, And lends an agony most keen To those who vainly look and lean, And vent, in envious gaze their spleen, In futile pet, Because their lot it had not been The kiss to get. It happened on a festal night.

it nappened on a festal night,
When pleasure's lamps were burning bright,
And joy's effulgence lett its light,
That Madeline,
Who graced the seene,
Caught of fair Eleanor the sight,
Across the hall, arrayed in white. A very quee And Eleanor, she,
Just then did see
Fair Madeline, with eestacy—
A crowd between.
Then smiles were given, and waving hands,
As potently as masic wauds,
Prompted the meet,
And through the intervening throng
They dashed with loving haste along,
On fairy feet.

On fairy feet,
With ardor and impatience strong
For tender greet.

I love to see the rapture deep When maidens to reunion sweep: Their souls, elate, Their souls, elate, Anticipate,
And to the fond encounter leap.
Thus Eleanor and Madeline
Rush swiftly on, as we have seen,
Oft carroming on those between,
Who guess not the excitement keen,
Until they close,
And then—well, it was dreadful mean
To interpose!

Just as they met with pouting lips.
Sweet as the rose the bee-moth sips.
A kiss to share.
His hand a waiting gallant slips
Between the juscious labial tips.

Between the luscious labial tips,
And robs the pair!
Upon his hand the kisses press,
The back and palm their warmth confess;
(And what his feelings we must guess)
Bank robbery 'twas, and nothing less,
Most flagrant of offenses;
'Twas getting goods, it was averred.
Of which so much is often heard,
On fraudulent pretences.

Then, seeing that it gave them pain. He said he'd give it bace again. If he was so commanded; But. though confessing it a crime, He justified it all the time. Because 'twas open handed. B. P. SHILLABER.

PROMISES OF THE CROPS. BOUNTIFUL HARVESTS ASSURED

Yew Exceptions to the Rule of Increased or Average Yield —Damage by Flood and Frost Less than Was Feared—Cotton, Sugar Cane and Tobacco Doing Well, Etc., Etc.

From the New York Times Floods, frosts, and a backward spring have all worked to the injury of the crops this year, but the comprehensive statement of their present condition, which The Times now lays before its readers, will show that, despite these influences, the general conditions, with few exceptions, promises an abundant harvest throughout the country. From 37 states and 4 territories-nearly all except those whose agricultural products are of no importance-the most trustworthy information has been obtained. From 120 different places, covering over 1,500 centres of agriculinral work, persons whose business and interest it has been to secure accurate knowledge of the crops have sent the result of their investigations to the Times.

The small grains, despite bad spring weather, promise well. Winter wheat will give an increased yield in nearly every state except Indiana, Ohio and New York. The last named only will produce much less than the awerage. Spring wheat is much more flattering in its promise. In the great grain states west of the Mississippi the increase is especially marked, in some cases as much as 50 per cent. In some of the old grain states, other grains are replacing wheat—barley, oats and rye especially. In wheat—barley, oats and rye especially. In all these a large increase in acreage is report-ed and promise a large crop. Insects and rust are reported in some places, but only in Ten-nessee is much alarm felt. Corn shows a very large increase in nearly every state where is cultivated at all. In the north it shares to some extent in the displacement of winter wheat, and in the south it is replacing cotton to some extent. Emigration and the pushing of railroad construction are prominent factors in the increase of the grain fields.

Cotton is expected to give at least an aver age crop. The area devoted to it is much smaller, floods, a partial abandonment of the smaller, floods, a partial abandonment of the "all cotton" system, and the inability of planters to obtain sufficient supplies work together to this result. The free use of fertilizers, however, is expected to keep the yield up to the average. The planters throughout the south have been much hampered, also, by the difficulty in obtaining laborers. The sugar cane crop is looking splendidly, except in a few cases, in some of the flooded districts, where it has been killed. The cultivation of rice is receiving more attention, and probably the average crop will be secured. Tobacco does not show much change; and increased acreage will be planted in some of the middle and northern states. Hay and grass crops have been much injured throughout the country, and generally a light yield have been much injured throughout the country, and generally a light yield is expected. The high price of potatoes has led farmers to devote an increased acreage to that vegetable this year. The fruit crops have been the chief sufferers. Frosts have about destroyed peaches and small fruit in Virginia, Maryland and Delaware and the Hudson valley. Other fruits will give an average yield, except perhaps cherries. The dairy interests in the north and east are receiving more attention, and, with fruit-raising, replacing the cultivation of Kentucky—Winter wheat shows a larger acreage; crop in good condition. Corn and oats will be planted more than last year. Tobacco remains as last year. There will be a fair crop of peaches.

Louisiana—Cotton planting has been retarded; the acreage will probably not change much. The sugarcane, except in overflowed places, is generally in very good condition, with the usual acreage. Corn will show some increase.

Maine—Snow and ice have not permitted farmers to do much yet. Hay and potatoes are expected to yield largely. Oats and wheat will be sown to some extent.

Maryland—More than the average crop of wheat and corn is promised. Tobacco will remain about the same. The fruit crop has been nearly destroyed by frost.

Massachusetts—Grains generally are promised about the average. Hay, potatoes and tobacco show a slight increase. The dairy interests are being extended.

Michigan—Wheat, outs, corn, rye and barley, with about the same acreage, are looking well. The forest fires cleared much land, making farming somewhat easier, and the sufferers were plentifully supplied with seed.

Minnesota—Large crops are expected, with an increased acreage of 15 per cent. in wheat and 5 per cent. each in corn and amber cane.

Mississippi—The yield of cotton is expected to be as large as the big crop of 1881. Seventighths nearly of the flooded districts will be lanted. The prospects for corn and oats are unusually flattering, with an increased acreage.

Rhode Island—Corn and potatoes show an increase in acreage. Grass is looking well. Farm labor is scarce.

South Carolina—Cotton looks well, with a slightly diminished acreage. Winter wheat and oats show a very large increase. Rice promises not more than half the usual crop. Tennessee—The planting of cotton is increasing. The prospects of winter wheat are endangered by by and rust. Fruit prospects are flattering. Grass is above the average.

Texas—Wheat promises a yield over that of last year. Corn and oats look well, and the acreage has been extended. Cotton is in good condition. Stock-raising interests are prosperous.

West Virginia-Winter wheat, with the same acreage, will show double the yield of 1881. Corn and oats are more generally planted. Fruits have been much damaged. Wisconsin—This state is losing ground as a wheat producer. Barley is the main crop this year, and a very large crop is expected. Spring wheat shows some increase, with good prospects. Stock-raising is attracting attention.

Wyoming—Emigration has increased the area devoted to spring wheat, rye, and barley. The mild winter favored cattle, and a large increase in the herds is reported.

L J Camp. COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

Petition Which is Being Circulated in the Intere-of a Law for their Benefit. of a Law for their Henefit.

Yesterday a petition was started among the business men of Atlanta which will, when a sufficient number of names are secured, be presented to Colonel Hammond, the representative of the fifth district in congress. The petition urges Mr. Hammond to use his influence in support of a bill introduced by Hon. John Hart Brewer, of New Jersey, entitled "A bill to regulate the commerce between the states, pertaining to commercial travelers." The bill provides that any person acting as an official, or in the capacity of a private citizen, who shall interfere in any way with a commercial traveler in the carrying on of his business, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished accordingly. The object of the bill is to put an end to the collection of special taxes which, in many places, are levied on commercial travelers.

In October last a copy of Derry's History of the United States, written by Professor J. T. Derry, professor of languages in Wesleyan Female college, was sent to Mr. James S. Mason, editor Southern Reveille, Port Gibson, Miss. Pleased with the work himself, he placed it in the hands of the faculty of Chamberlain Hunt academy, of Port Gibson, most of them graduates of the Virginia university, and ripe scholars, and asked them to take their own time in examining the history.

Captain Thomas L. Norwood, after a most thorough examination, voluntarily wrote the following, and handed it to Mr. Mason:

"Having carefully examined Derry's History of the United States, by Prof. J. T. Derry, of Macon, Ga., I carnestly recommend it as a text book for our schools. It is correct as to facts, unimpeachable as to style, elegant in print and binding. The questions are full, well selected, and correspond with the text. The topical reviews constitute a most excellent feature. I like it better than any history of the United States that I have seen.

We trust our educators will not neglect this book. It should be in every school, and it will be when its merits are known."

It gives us pleasure to note these evidences of the excellence of Professor Derry's work. The history is the result of much labor and research, and that it should prove so great a success is no more than simple justice to the talented southern author.

Last evening's visit to the immense dry goods store of this "very live merchant" gave us a particularly agreeable surprise. We had heard somewhat of a depression in trade, but a glance at friend Keely's crowded store completely reassured us as to the healthy condition of allairs in our city. Every department was full of customers who gave free expression to their satisfaction, both as regards the amazingly extensive and beautiful stock displayed, and the extremely moderate prices at which they were presented for sale.

The gallant captain, with his customary urbanity, took us aside and showed us easgoes of the newest and most beautiful goods, which he assured us he is going to alsughter this week. He says: "I am not contented with doing a mere than ordinarily large business; I am determined to do an extraordinary business," and judging by what we saw we should say he will do it. Mableton is in a thickly settled and fine farming section of Cobb county, and is a most excellent location for a town, plenty of fine timber all around, excellent water, pure, healthy air, with good adjacent surroundings to build up and sustain a town; one store is already located there and others will soon go up; Concord Factory is 2½ miles distant, and will add much to the importance of Mableton, which will be the receiving and shipping depot for factory goods and supplies. Parties wishing to secure business and residence lots should do so at this sale, before the town grows, and lots go up in price. The terms are so easy that any one can buy one or more lots, and every one living in the neighborhood should buy at least one lot, and thus help to build up the town. Titles perfect. Wallace PROPERTY—YONGE, CHAMBER lain and Foster streets. Eight room dwelling and six vacant lots at auction. We will sell on the premises, Monday, May 8th. at 4 o'clock, Colonel A. M. Wallace's residence (No. 97 Yonge street) and six nice vacant lots, east of and enclosed with the residence lot. The dwelling contains 8 rooms (six plastered), halis, closets, pantry, and verandahs fronting both Yonge and Chamberl in streets. The house is conveniently arranged and very comfortable, the rooms and halls being plastered and nicely papered. The residence lot, as shown on plat, is a large, fine lot, fronting three streets, which renders it exceedingly convenient, desirable and valuable for a home, as it can never be crowded, and will always be airy, quiet and pleasant. The dwelling and yard are well shaded by fine, stately oak trees, the value of which cannot be estimated, as they render the premises cool and perfectly delightful during the summer. There are also a number of choice fruit trees and grape vines in full bearing on the lot. Near the back door is a deep, rock-bottom well, which affords an abundance of water as pure, clear and cool as any in the city. A more delightful location for a home cannot be found in Atlanta, and from no point in the city can a finer or more sweeping view be obtained. From the funt versuidah, the view is simply grand, and takes in the city from the Catholic church on the left, to the extreme end of Peachtree street on the right. The vacant lots on Chamberlain and Foster streets are very desirable and convenient for nice homes or renting houses, which would command good transit, and pay a large interest on the investment. To seekers of homes, investments or speculatious, this property possesses rare inducements. It is in the most progressive and growing section of the city, where the demand for property is greater, prices advancing faster and houses going up more rapidly than in any other, yet the demand cannot be supplied, which proves the increasing pop FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS. street ear, in front of the Kimball house. Troom dwelling and 12 vacuat lets at auction. We will sell on the premises, Wednesday, May 10th, at half-past 3 o'clock, that splendid property known as the Boyd Place, fronting Jackson and Blackman streets, as per plat. This b-autiful property has ever been much admired, and is known to be one of the prettiest and most desirable locations for residences on that beautiful new avenue, which is destined to be the second Peachtree street of Atlanta, as it runs along on top of the high, commanding ridge, parallel with the Peachtree ridge, and equally as elevated and desirable for residence sites. The property is on a beautiful, delightful and healthy eminence, commanding fine views of the city on one side and an extensive landscape on the other. The air is pure, fresh and healthy. The water is as good as any in the state. The situation is one of the most pleasant and convenient on that street, being only 76 yards from ano in full view of the horse cars, and a very short walk from Ponce de Leon and Angier's springs—the fashionable resorts of Atlanta. It is also very near, and immediately opposite, the proposed location of one of the city parks, which, as we are informed, will soon be handsomely improved and made the most attractive resort in the city, and that will add greatly to the value of this property. The residence lot (No 1) is very large, fronts two streets, is well shaded by fine oaks, and is unquestionably one of the handsomerst residence sites on Jackson street. The dwelling is a very comfortable and substantial building, containing ten large rooms, 20x20 feet, all well connected and ventilated, wide halls, front and rear versudahs, closets, pantries and storage cellar. There is a stone smoke house a barn, stables and carriage house, fine garden spot, and well of purest and best water on lot No. 1, let No. 12 is valuable as a residence or business lot, being at the intersection of two of the main drives from the city to the springs. He has twice been a member of council from his ward and sustained a creditable reputation on all committees upon which he was appointed by the mayor. TAY PAYER. Old Coins. A gentleman in this city has a curious old coin dated 1745. A gentleman in this city has a curious old coin dated 1745.

The foregoing paragraph, which appeared in yesterday's Constitution, brought to light a lot of curious old coins. Early in the morning a representative of the paper met a gentleman from Cincinnati, who said: "I see you mention an old coin this morning, but I can beat it," and drawing from his pocket his purse he spilt its contents on a table. "Here," he began, "is a coin of 1604. It is known as the Lutheran coin, and its value is equal to a crown. Here is a Roman copper coin of 540, which has no value at this age. Then this 6dd shaped piece of silver, with its uneven five sides or edges, is equal to a fifty cent coin to-day. It is known by coin collectors as a San Salvador coin. It was issued in the second period. This is known'—pick ing up another piece—"as Ptolomaic coin, and I have, I think, the only complete collection of these coins in the United States. I have five pieces, and their values are 6 cents, 12½ cents, 25 cents, 50 cents, 160 cents. According to history, they must be 2,100 years old, They are, as you see, full of Greek inscriptions. Then here is the smallest coin known. You see it is hardly as large as an agate button. Its value is one-fourth of a cent. It is a Mexican coin and was made during the days of Santa Anna. But here is a pattern of the rarest coin known, it is a Queen Anne coin and can hardly be found even in the copy. I have also this India coin, but as I have never found any one who could decipher these hierogliphies. I know nothing about its age or value.

Constitution—Please be good enough to ray to the public that Albert Thomas, "the horse-trader." who lives on East Harris street, No 158, is not the one accused of rape in yesterday morning's paper, 19 Very respectfully, ALERET THOMAS.

The Ladies Aid Society of St Philip's Parish desire to tender their thanks for kindness extended during their late Festival: To Mr. scoville, for use of hall, with gas, etc.; also to the Constitution for favors; to Mr. Rodgers, for contributing a band of music; to Mr. Byington, for use of table linen; to Messrs. Emery and Snook, for liberal contributions, as also to the ladies and children, and any others who so kindly assisted us.

The officers of the above association have been in frequent consultation since the annual meeting, and are preparing for the most active and aggressive work during the summer months. In addition to the annual celebration, which is set down for August, it is understood that at least three neighborhood celebrations will be held in the country during the season.

We are informed that in view of the fact that nearly all our churches have special meetings in progress, it has been decided to postpone the institute meeting until next month.

The association, under the present organization, is a thoroughly equipped corps of Obristian workers, and their labors are sure to bear good fruit.

It is interesting to learn what the Californian lady thinks of the conduct of Prince Philippe, who has a penchant for hovering around the fiame of American beauty, and who was once capitivated by the charms as well as the fortune of a Massachusetts Ayress. "What was the attitude of the prince in this matter?" said the scribe. "He had no attitude whatever," answered Mrs. Macky, who has a wit of her own. "He allowed the story to go on, and took no more notice of it than if it were in circulation in the moon. He sent no correction of the story to the papers, and he even allowed it to be said in some of them that he 'would disdain such a missillaince.' Here is a prince who has but little in common with Pinde Charming. Frankly, it is not such conduct as this which will help me to overcome my prejudice against titled people. I should, of course, be much flattered if an honest man—whatever might be hi rank or fortune—should come to me for my daughter's hand; and I will confess that i would much rather keep her band for such a main than for a count, a marquis, a duke or even a prince; they are generally runned, yet fancy that they are to some extent degraded when they marry a girl be longing to a family without an escutcheon. They are often very happy, nowever, to regid their own cost-of-arms with coin honorably gained by a financier of commercial man. In America a kind of ridicule invariably surrounds young women who marry titled strangers. Queen Isabella's Ruby Ring. From the N. Y. Sun.

From the N. Y. Sun.

A large ruby ring, said to have been the property of Queen Isabella of Spain, was seized yesterday in this city for non-payment of customs duty. The jewel has been in this country about two months, and has been in the hands of half a dozen firms dealing in diamonds. It is valued at $10,000. Experts say the ruby is the largest ever brought to America, and that it was sold in Paris at the recent sale of the jewels of Queen Isabella. It is about three-quarters of an inch long and more than half an inch broad. In shape it is eilip ical. Around the ruby are set twelve very white diamonds, each one of which weighs over a carat. The ruby weighs fifteen carats. The ring is of gold and heavily chased. The seizure was made at the office of the Morse Diamond Company by special agent Charles N. Brackett, no duties having ever been paid upon it. The owner of it is not known.

To Whom Do Wedding Presents Belong?

from the Boston Advertiser. The London Times gives a report of a recent case on wedding presents, discussing the point of whether they were paraphernalia under the old common-law dectrine that the clothes and ornaments given a married woman by her husband, although subject to the control of her husband during his life, really belonged in equity to the wife, and went to her at his death. We are not aware of any decision on the nature of paraphernalia in this state, and probably the statutes as to married women have abolished it; but the ownership of wedding presents is sometimes discussed, and the advocates of women's rights will see a new proof of the schishness of man in Mr. Justice Matthews's decision, which refuses to give them exclusively to the wife, although in this case the effect of the decision was to keep the property in the family. The London Times gives a report of a recent can woodding presents discussing the Ladies Who Wear, Wigs. From the Cincinnati Gazette.

From the Cincinnati Gazette.

The number of ladies who wear wigs, covering either the whole or part of the head, is appalling, even young ladies resorting to this expedient. The reason given is that it saves the natural hair a long, course of injurious crimping and curling. Wigs and front pieces are so cleve by made to imitate natural hair that detection is almost impossible, and it is the being found out, and not the fraud itself, which weighs on the conscience. Frizzes and waved bangs form the front, and soft puffs and curls or a Fiench twist the back, and these are varied or replaced by many different arrangements that would deceive the very elect and beguile all the society men, except perhaps those who are on confidential terms with their sisters.

Written for The Constitution.

The whippoorwill has come at last and that is a good sign that cold winds and chilly nights are over. It is a sweet, sad note they sing, and I like to sit in the piazo after supper and hear them echo their plaintive music to one another all around us. It sounds like peace and resignation and subdues our feelings and harmonizes us to the day's troubles and disappointments. Solomon says it is better to go to the house of mourning than the house of feasting. Well, I suppose that depends on how often a feller goes and how long he stays and how old a man he is. Too much feasting will surfeit anybody, and it takes less of it to salivate an old man than a young one, but still these sad and plaintive. is a good sign that cold winds and chilly young one, but still these sad and plaintive bunes come over us mighty gently and seem to last longer than a rolicking, frolicking fiddlededee sort of music. All kinds have their times and their fitness and one emotion was given us to follow another and we ought to enjoy them all if we could. The funeral dirge is as much a part of life as the wedding bells, and we must take 'em as they come. We must weep with those who weep. Sym pathy is a refining sort of thing-sympathy for the sick and suffering and for anybody in for the sick and suffering and for anybody in trouble. It brings us close to our nabors and smooths over old animosities, and brings comfort and strength to both sides. I have great respect for folks who have an abundance of shore enough sympathy. I knew a man once who wasen't much account, and made no dgure in life, but he was always on hand at a funeral—an humble and silent mourner with the family of the dead. And one day he died himself, and I thought that may be the same epitaph that let Ben Adem into heaven would let him in, for he loved his fellow men. WE ABUSE ONE ANOTHER

A good deal, especially about election times, and whenever the good Lord prospers a man we join in with the devil and slander him, but when the Lord lays his hand heavy upon him we get sorry right straight. I was a ru-minating over this whilst the whippoorwill was singing, for I had just read that Ben Hill and Joe Brown were in a critical condition, and their lives were hanging on a slender thread, and it made me feel how helpless thread, and it made me feet now nepress even a great man was in the hands of his Creator. There comes a time when fame, and wealth, and power, and ambition all surrender, and sontetimes it comes so soon, so unexpected—too soon, indeed, the way we see it, for the state and the country can ill afford to lose those men now. The war brought about much bitterness, but time is a wonderful deer. The hadrener all accounts and ful doctor. Time balances all accounts, and the day has come, thank the Lord, when the old men, and most of the middle aged have forgotten and forgiven—yea, and done more than that, for they have reviewed their own mistakes and ask about as much forgiveness for themselves as they show to others. If Ben mistakes and ask about as much forgiveness for themselves as they show to others. If Ben Hill, and Alek Stephens and Joe Brown can forgive one another and meet in kindly brotherhood who else should complain.

THAT TRIO OF STATESMEN

Have made their marks upon our history. They have been great from the beginning of their public lives. They have been bold and aggressive. They have been leaders of the people and the people have followed them and honored them. But, now, all of a sudden, it looks like their time is up. They are about to retire—may be to home and hearth and quiet and the communion of kindred and friends. We hope so—but, may be, like the traveller, a night's lodging or a few days' rest is all. They are not old men. They ought to be in their prime of mental vigor, but, nevertheless, they have lived a great deal—few men have lived more. Old Parr died when he was one hundred and thirty-six, but Old Parr hardly lived at all. He was an infant compared with some men who died young. The age of a man is nothing if he accomplishes nothing. Old Dr. Johnson said that every man could do something for posterity. He could plant a tree, if he did nothing else, and the shade of it and the fruit of it would comfortsomebody when he was dead. My idea of a successful life is for a man to do all the good fort somebody when he was dead. My idea of a successful life is for a man to do all the good he can conveniently and consistent with his sition and circumstances. I don't believe he is in duty bound to hunt after it—to make a missionary of himself—but every man has a circle that he moves in, and within that he ought to give as much pleasure and do as much good as possible, and be very quiet about it.

about it.

on a strain. Ambition develops great men, but the wear and tare of it is not good for a man's health or his happiness or the happiness of his family. It is better to live in the country and enjoy pure air and good water, and not see too much society. Folks can see society until they have no pleasure at home.
A country his secures good health, and that is worth more than fame or money. I was a thinking about my nabors, and I don't know one who has to go to the springs. There are thinking about my nabors, and I don't know one who has to gs to the springs. There are no livers out of order—no dyspepsia or brodchitis—no Graham. bread or oatmeal porridge—no dieting except when we haven't got as much to eat as we want to eat. I see that the northern people are discussing the propriety of eating no more meat and lost of em are quitting it and say they feel better and better every day. That's because they are puny and delicate and don't work out of doors but they will never convert a man who labors in the field to refuse a nice beefsteak or fried chicken or boiled ham and greens for dinner. There are some habits that come down to us from Adam and they are going to stick. I don't know exactly about Adam but Abel eat sheep meat and Isaac eat venison and the Lord said to Noah, "Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you." Country folks enjoy their food more than anybody. Peas from the vine and potatoes freshly dug and berries picked at home by the children are better than town folks can buy in the market. I reckon that Henry Grady thought he enjoyed those strawberries at one who has to go to the springs. There ar thought he enjoyed those strawberries at food to perfection the control of the pores get open from perspiration and the pores get open from perspiration and the eraving for food to restore the waste and the appetite is keen and sensitive. A man who sets about town and talks, with his feet on a chair or a table, never gets hungry at all. He eats from habit and goes to diamer because the bell rang. Country people are always hungry, and that's the reason the horn blows a little before twelve, and I've seen the plowman stop in the middle of a row and make for the house as lively as a darky will mount his mule and dle of a row and make for the house as lively as a darky will mount his mule and run from a little shower of rain. These darkies amuse me. Every time a sprikle comes they unhitch and mount and make for homemand gets wet a coming and the shower quits by the time they got here, and when I ask 'em what they come for, they say "I was aftered of the thunder." They don't care a cent about the lightning. The darkies around 'here are a weil-behaved, industrious set and give us no trouble. I never knew 'em set and give us no trouble. I never knew 'en to work as well. Last year's failure of crops set the tenant system back and they hire now set the tenant system back and they hire how at reasonable wages. There is no small steal-ing going on that I hear of. Well, somebody did steal two bee gums from nabor Freeman the other night and dropped one in the road, but they was white men and we've got'em spotted. It is not the country negroes who are making mischief now. It is the town and city vagabonds who carry pistols and put on aim and impudence and go sporting round.

The red clay pipe is made in this city at the rate of about two million a year, worth five or ten cents apiece, or ten or twenty thousand dollars. The clay comes from Martha's Vineyard, Governor's island, N. Y., and Lake Michigan. Three hundred tons are used in a year. The three kinds of clay are mixed or ground together. A workman with a pile of clay beside him makes from it single rolls of clay, each large enough to make a pipe. The next worker places the clay in a pipe

They are made black by the process of enameling. The band is made from a circular piece of brass, that is to say, a circular piece of brass without break or seam is turned into a cylinder about an inch in length. Some pipes are stained, while others are left in the color of the clay to be stained or colored by

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.: Gents: I have suffered from Scrofula for about 17 years. The disease being mostly confined to my legs and ankles, my shin bones were covered with LARGE ULCERS AND ONE MASS OF ROTTEN FLESH, AND THE ODOR ALMOST UNBEARABLE. All remedies and treatments which I tried failed to do me any good. When at last I began taking S. S. S., continuing for about four months, I AM CERTAINLY WELL. I took S. S. ATLANTA March 15, 1882. SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY-

I feel it a duty I owe to you and uffering humanity to add my testimony to the merits of S. S. S. and cheerfully certify to the following facts and would that all who are suffering from that MOST LOATHSOME DISEASE could know what it has accomplished for me:

After suffering from Syphilis for more than a year being treated by several eminent physi. cians, who all used the usual remedies of the profession-MERCURY, IODIDE OF POT. ASH, with no perceptible change for the better-confined to my ROOM and bed the greater part of the time-my body covered! with copper-colored sores from the size of a pea to that of a silver half dollar-the disease reached what is known as the secondary stage, leaving me well nigh in despair. Finally, I commenced taking S. S. S. under the advice and supervision of a first-class physician. In a short time I began to improve in flesh and all the sores healed and I could feel and know that I was well and to S. S. S. must the credit be given of my entire restoration to health. I have not taken a dose for more than six months and am as free rom sores or blemish as any one and feel that I have a new lease on life. Respectfully, LOTTIE ROSS.

The above cases were treated under the supervision of one of our best physicians. If any who are interested will call at LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR'S they can learn full particulars.
